Poetry.

An Idyl of the Farm.

BY JAMES MAURICE THOMPSON.

I.

By bloodless conquest I am king
Of this old farm of mine;
The larks, my poets laureate, sing
The praises of my line,
Whose source was in the Saxon hills
Beloved by shepherd men,
In a sweet, Arcadian place of rills,
With Pan as denizen!

II.

By living streams my cattle grace,
Where the lush red clover grows;
I drive my plow in pleasant ways,
That only labor knows;
The bright share breaks the fragrant glebe
Into a foam of soil,
And through my drill-tubes drops the seed
Of coming corn and oil.

III.

To me my reaper's whir and clang
Is a nobler song, by far,
Than any Homer ever sang
Of Ilion and of war;
My sheafs and shocks of blond sweet grain
Are more than gold to me;
Gusts from my orchard up the lane
Bear smell of Araby.

IV.

Through the week day hours I strive
With all the hosts of weeds,
Right through their plumed ranks I drive
My harrow and my steeds;
My steel-barbed chariot strikes them down,
And drags them at its heel,
As did the one of old renown
With Hector at the wheel!

V.

I dream, sometimes, while taking rest
Upon the grass at noon,
(What time my snowy flocks infest
The leafy groves of June),
Of him who sailed from Greece
With that historic band,
Who found the fable golden fleece
Upon the Colchian strand.

VI.

I dream that over my tender grass
The Argo sails with me.
Besides sweet isles of wheat we pass,
And under the shady lee
Of cool, damp woods that smell of moss,
Until we reach the land
Where wee blue waves of violets toss
Against a daisy strand.

VII.

And there I find a blue eyed maid,
My wife that is to be,
My tiney queen in chintz arrayed
And smiling regally!
I spread my arms; here is the fleece
That all the world has sought!
Is she thy Meadea, Bard of Greece,
And I thine Argonaut?

VIII.

My hour is up—I wake and smile,
Refreshed to work I go,
Pass in review and rank and file
Of many a sinewy row
Of beans and melons, peas and corn,
Till night lights up her car,
And the young moon hangs her silver horn

Selected Story.

Mistaken Identity

One evening, while in the billiard room of a Paris hotel, a young man invited me to join him in a game. I consented, and we played for an hour or so, after which we went up to his room, smoked and played piquet. He remarked while playing that we looked so much alike we might be taken for brothers. I had not especially remarked the likeness between us till now, but it was not very great. The similitude merely consisting in both of us wearing a rather long red beard, and hair the same color; but, then his eyes were blue, mine gray, and he a scar over his left eye. Still one of us might be taken for the other at a distance.

We played till midnight, and I left him, going to my room; but an indescribable feeling came over me and I could not sleep. I tossed about my bed, then got up, lit a cigar, and sat at my window, looking down on the "Quai Henri Quartre," smoking.

It had just struck two from the church of St. Jacques, when I saw a carriage drive up to the door, and three men got out and entered the hotel. I wondered where they could have come from at that time of night. I sat smoking and thinking, when a light tap came at the door; I unlocked it; it was my friend with whom I had been playing billiards.

He had a valise in his hand and appeared in a hurry, but not the least excited.

"They have just sent a carriage for me; my father is not expected to live till morning; take care of this for me until to-morrow," he said, leaving the valise in my room.

All passed so quickly I had not time to think, and he passed down stairs, and I did not dream of following him, being undressed. I went back to the window and saw the carriage drive off rapidly. Then I said to myself, "why did he not take the valise with him, as he had a carriage?" but then, I thought, he had needs travel quickly, and did not wish to be bothered with baggage. I was not long smoking and thinking, when another rap was at my door. I opened it, and a tall, military looking personage walked in, while another had come in my window from the balcony. I was hand-cuffed almost before I had time to speak; and another gentleman walked in. The tall gentleman said: "Sir, you are arrested on the charge of murder; so please keep as quiet as you can."

I nearly fainted. The idea of my being arrested as a murderer. I sank in my chair, while one of them said to me:

"I'm glad you fetched your luggage with you, sir; much obliged to you; for you've saved us a heap of trouble. Why, we've been following that leather valise at the door for the last few days; but we always come up our game."

"That is not my valise," I said; "that belongs to a gentleman down stairs."

"See here, young man," said the tall detective, "the less you say about that, the better. You may tell us what you like now, but you'll be coutradicting yourself by-and-by."

"But I tell you it is not mine; I am not a murderer and protest against this arrest and outrage upon my liberty," I said. The other detective interrupted me.

"Young man," said he, "it's a pity you were not brought up in the law business; you would have made a first class shyster. We'll give you a chance to talk to the judges when we get back to Paris, but you can't talk to us."

In the meantime the tall detective forced open the valise, and after some searching found three diamoned studs, very like those I had seen on the young man in the gambling saloon. I felt myself growing paler.

"I say, Henri, I thought we were on the right track," said he. "Let us search him now."

Then they commenced to search my clothes, took out everything from my pockets, and at last came to the watch.

"Young man, I'm afraid it will go hard with you," he said.

I tried to explain, but it was of no use. They made me dress myself, took everything they could find belonging to me in the room, and I was marched down stairs between them. They brought me into the parlor of the hotel, and two of them stayed with me, while the other went out to see if the carriage was all right, as he said. A sudden thought struck me. I said that was the young man's carriage—he who left me the valise. The detective only smiled. I told him what had passed and how I had seen the carriage driven away. A thought seemed also to have struck him. The detective who went after the carriage now came in; the other whispered something hurriedly to him and he went quickly out again.

After this I was brought up stairs to my room. They bolted the windows and locked the door. All this had been done so quickly, and in such a short space of time, that no one but the hotel keeper and a few waiters knew anything that was passing.

Then they procured paper and ink, and the agent said: "Now, if we are mistaken, or if it should happen that you are only an accomplice, tell us all you know truthfully, and you may get off much easier. I have my own opinion about the valise," he added, "but tell me truly how you came in possession of the watch."

I told him all. He smiled significantly and when I had finished he said: "Well you may be innocent, but I suppose you are aware that the young man who was found with his throat cut is the same who pledged that watch, and whose diamond studs you must have remarked that night, have been found in your valise, or that of your friend, as you call it.

"Now, why did you not make it known that you had the watch, when you must have guessed it belonged to Mariette Gaudoin, the former mistress of the murdered man, to whom he had made it a present, but who returned it?"

I told him I had thought of doing so; but I had seen by the papers that she had been arrested as an accomplice, and I had no particular wish to get myself mixed up in the affair.

The truth now flashed across my mind. The man who had left the valise sought to shift the murder on my shoulders; and he was the murderer.

I shuddered.

The agent now told me he had sent after the other man and he would no doubt be arrested before morning. I asked him how he would find out where the carriage went to. He replied: "Why you see it is a frosty night; my agent will get on a horse, follow the tracks of the carriage, and will probably overtake it before two hours, if he has left town, as there is but one road leading to Romen, and no trains leave here before eight o'clock to-morrow morning, at which hour I will start for Paris, so if you have any inclination to sleep you can do so."

I slept but little that night. The next morning we left for Paris. I was allowed the priviledge of a newspaper, and could not help smiling as I looked over the news, rumors and facts of the great murder, which the editors had hashed up for their morning readers. After reading I slept most of the way, dreaming of diamond studs, prisons, hotels, valises, and agents of police, and wondered at the reality when I awoke, only to find the gray eyes of the agent fixed upon me—those eyes that looked so bright, though they had not closed in sleep for perhaps two nights before he had arrested me.

We arrived in Paris at last, and I was at once conveyed to prison.

That very day a young lady came into my cell, accompanied by an agent of police, in whom I recognized the one with the golden hair, whom I had seen in the gambling saloon in the Rue Neuve des Petite Champs.

The Agent said, pointing to me, "Do you recognize that man?" She replied without hesitation that she did.

"Well, we are ready to take your deposition, madamoiselle," and the agent added, "Henri, come and witness this." A turnkey entered. The young lady commenced in a silver voice as follows: "I first saw this man in a gambling saloon in the Rue Neuve des Petite Champs; he was playing at the same table as the murdered man, whom I have also recognized at the morgue. Sometimes they would leave the table and take their refreshments together in the saloon. The prisoner left the house before the murdered man, who did not leave until two hours later, and had won much that night."

This deposition she signed with her name, Eugene Dumont.

Here the interview ended, and I was left alone to reflect.

I heard next day from one of the keepers that the friend who had left the valise with me had been captured at La Forge Rouen, where he had made a desperate resistance, but had been overpowered.

I spoke to the tall agent, and asked him to recommend me to a good lawyer. He did so, and I sent for him. In the meantime the agent said the other prisoner was very like me, with the exception that he wore a mustache, while I had a beard. I remarked that he had a beard when I saw him last. "Oh, we know all that," said the agent. "When we entered the hotel he saw that his game was up, so he put his valise in your room, cut off his beard, trimmed his mustache, went straight to our carriage, which was waiting, and told the driver coolly to drive him to another hotel, then paid and discharged him. Of course the driver never suspected anything, as he thought the murderer was one of my party. But the coolest part of the business was, that he came on as far as Rouen on the same train with ourselves, at least so he himself says. In his room at the hotel we found a large clasp-knife, with the blood dried in the interstices; also the hair he had cut off."

The agent then told me the prisoner had confessed; and in his confession had stated that he had followed me from Rouen to Dieppe to shift the murder on me, as I looked so much like him, and as he had seen me leave the gambling house while he lay in wait for the murdered man, as he knew the detectives were on his track.

What a singular stroke of luck it would have been in his favor, the fact of my having the watch, had chance not fixed it otherwise!

Next day, through the kindness of the agent and the efforts of my lawyer, I was released on bail. I appeared at the trial, which was very long, and called several times to the stand.

The clue the detectives discovered the murderer by was the fact they had found two letters on the murdered man from Marietta Gaudoin to Claude Belin. By means of these they found Mariette, and from her obtained information that Claude had been in the habit of gambling. They then found he had been in the house at which I met him. I was at once suspected, and an agent started after me, having my description, which coincided exactly with the murderer, were it not that he had a scar over his right eye.

The detective then got on my track and so it happened that the murderer saw me at Rouen, where his keen eyes soon recognized me, and he determined to throw his guilt over me, thinking, no doubt, any personal resemblance to him would help considerably to that end. Little thought he, however, that the agents of police were following so closely in my footsteps' and that he was making his own capture the more easy.

The trial was at length over, and as I stood there, while the judge sentenced him to death, I shuddered when I thought of the quiet game of cards he and I played together at the dead hour of midnight in his own room, where he might easily have murdered me, had he felt so inclined, as I never carried my arms. I shuddered again, and hoped he would be forgiven.

He saw me, and a bitter smile flitted across his face. He beckoned me to come to him. I went over, and he whispered hoarsely in my ear: "Do you forgive me? I played my last hand with you, and did not cheat. Adieu."

I felt his cold hand in mine, and he pressed it, and said: "Gambling has brought me here! Beware! Farewell!'

Miscellaneous.

The Infamy of the Gerrymander

When we come to look into the Senatorial Districts laid off at the last sessions of this State, it is impossible not to conclude that members in their partizan zeal have actually perjured themselves in their utter disregard and gross violation of the Constitution of the State, which says: "Each Senate District shall contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of inhabitants."

Now we know that the "Democrats" and Conservatives" have a majority of the members of the Legislature elect, but they represent the minority of voters for the Republican majority on the State ticket was over two thousand; on the Congressional over three; and on the Legislative vote, the aggregate Republican majority for all the Senatorial districts and counties is more than four thousand. Let us see how this thing was done.

To the eighteenth Senatorial district, comprising the county of Wake, having a population of 35,617 souls, but voting a Republican majority of five hundred and fifty, the last Legislature opportioned but one Senator.

To the seventeenth Senatorial district, comprising the county of Johnston, having a population of 16,807 souls, or 18,720 less than the county of Wake, but voting a small "Conservative" majority, they have also given one Senator!

To the tenth Senatorial district, comprising the counties of Wayne and Duplin, embracing a population of only 33,680 souls, and 1,031 less than the eighteenth Senatorial district with one Senator, but voting a small "Conservative" majority, they have given two Senators!

ANOTHER VIEW:—We take six counties, voting in the aggregate four thousand Republican majority, and embracing a population of 120,885, and we find to all these counties, and to this immense population, are given only four Senators. But to seven other counties, voting a "Conservative" majority of eight hundred, and embracing a population of 116,3337, or 4,548 less than the six Republican counties to which were allotted four Senators, they have given SEVEN Senators.

AGAIN:—For illustration take Wake and New Hanover counties with their aggregate population of 63,595 and Republican majority of two thousaed, and they are given two Senators; just the same as allotted to Sampson and Rockingham with their total population of only 32,144, but polling a "Conservative" majority, in the aggregate, of some two hundred and fifty.

AND AGAIN:—Wayne and Duplin, Johnson and Sampson, embracing in the aggregate, a population of 67,022, but voting Conservative majorities, in all, of some five hundred, are allowed four Senators; but Wake and New Hanover, population 63,314, are only given two Senators, because they vote heavy Republican majorities.

It will be seen from the above, that the practice of the last Legislature was to disregard the principle of equalizing population, as contained in the Constitution, but that body went deliberately to work to smother the large majorities in strong Republican counties, and, by fraud and violence, give undue weight and power to the majorities in the weak "Conservative" counties of the State.

Such conduct cannot be too severely criticised or condemned, and we shall keep this matter before the public until it is shown that, by fraud, violence and perjury, a minority representation has gotten temporary control of the Legislative branch of the State government; and this rump concern proposes to make a United States Senator who will not in any wise, reflect or represeut the political sentiment of North Carolina.—Ral. Era.

Fishy Records.

"None so blind as those who &c.

No one can get honor at the hands of the present Democratic party in the South, unless he has a satisfactory war record. This is exemplified on all hands, not only in this State, but in all the Southern States. But one of the most striking instances is the case of Judge Merrimon. There is hardly a man in the State, but knows how incomparably superior he is, in point of real ability and merit, to Ransom and Vance. While they are all talk and show, or all anecdote and scavo, Merrimon is known to be a solid man of work and brains, who could do his State and his party tenfold more service, in any position, than both Ransom and Vance combined. But unfortunately his war record is fishy,

Vance, even with disability on him, found no great trouble in bearing off the Senatorial palm from hands that were fishy on the question. In the second race, Ransom repeated the same operation on him of the fishy record. Now, Vance will easily enough "do it over again,' for that same record. By all party usage and justice, Merrimon is entitled to the Senator's place. He mad a most able canvass of the whole State, and was beaten. But he carried the Legislature for his party—and, as it seems, for Vance's benefit.

It is true Merrimon was nominated for Governor in spite of the Ransom and Vance combination. But it is true also, that it was managed to defeat him, while the Legislature was carried by a handsom majority. They do not mean to have either a Governor or a U. S. Senater of a fishy record. Merrimon is ambitious, and fully conscious of his great and superior ability to avail himself of trickery management and manuvering. He might have combined with some true record man, and insisted on a fair division of the spoils between the two records. But he vainly supposes that merit and service well performed was to be a winning element in the mongrel party.

Ransom and Vance combined, the one to take the East, and the other the West end of the "good things," and by see-sawing for each other to hold them as long as they live, and keep the other dogs out of the cup-board. As Vance was under disability and could not take it then, he was to go for Ransom, and carry followers enough to elect him. Ransom was supposed to have influence with Pool, and so Vance was to be relieved from disability. The back pay was to be divided, and Vance have money to go round and fix up things. And it all worked. Vance is to succeed Pool, and go for Ransom four years hence; and Ransom is to go for Vance six years hence—and Merrimon is to keep staying out in the cold, until the fishy order passes off from his war record, and his presence becomes less offensive at the table of Confederate gentlemen.—Era.

A Letter to the Editor of the Press.

[The following letter was sent to the Press, but to present date has not appeared.]

Shamokin, Pa, Oct. 25th, 1872.

JOHN W. FORNEY Esq. Editor of Phila. "Press"

DEAR SIR:—I am an humble citizen of this grand common wealth. I ask no office. I want none. I have always been a good natured Republican, and I glory in my record. I have always taken an active part in the elections to the advancement of our party. I have further taken your daily paper for about 15 years, and carefully read 4695 of them and paid you $120 for the same always in advance, without complaint and grumbling, as I have considered you always gave me an equivalent for my money until within the last six months wherein I have been defrauded, as it was paid in honest faith that you were to continue to defend the Republican party and support its nominees for office against the assaults of our political enemies. In both cases you have proven recreant and failed to fulfill your part, to wit: you have labored with all you zeal and talent to defeat our nominee for Governor. You have published and reiterated all the vile and gross slanders concocted and fabricated by his political enemies with the hope of defeating him and our candidate for Auditor General and thereby elect the Democratic nominees for the same office, placing our great common wealth once more under the control of Democratic "misrule' and you also well knew by the success of our Democratic opponents it would demoralize and greatly weaken the Republican party in the Presidential campaign by endorsing the war record of the Democratic nominee for Governor which was so objectionable to every true well wisher of our great Republic. By so doing it would have paved the way and greatly strengthened the Democratic candidate for President who has such a sympathetic regard for the southern "wayward sisters" and said in time of the Rebellion and continues to reiterate in his public speeches to the American people, the insulting language, "that if any State wishes to secede they have a right to do so." Such were the exact sentences of Jefferson Davis and his rebelious compeers. Such language virtually means that Gen. Grant and every officer and soldier who fought to subdue the

A FRIENDLY HINT TO YOUNG POETS.

There is scarce a week passes that we do not receive manuscript verses, dubbed "Poetry," from some of our young friends and readers with the modest request to publish. Very few of these find their way into our columns. We have a side drawer, and after glancing over them, they are very apt to be laid carefully bye in that, very much we fear to the mortification, disappointmeut and regret of our young friends aforesaid, because they seldom ever get out again except into our capacious waste basket, and from thence to the paper dealers. We pursue this course not out of disrespect to the aspirants for literary fame, nor to discourage their very laudable ambition, but simply because we recognize a difference between ordinary smooth rhyme and good poetry.

The truth is there is an increasing mania for the indulgence in versification which needs a check. Too many of our young writers possess a "fatal facility" for rhyming—fatal because it hinders them from ever rising to eminence as poets. It is by no means any indication of real genuine poetic talent to be able to compose with ease and rapidity. This fact quite too few realize. Depend upon it, that which costs but little, as a general rule, is worth but little. As we acquaint ourselves with the lives of the really great Poets, whether of the past or the present, we find that their smoothest verses—those which seemed the unpremeditated outpourings of inspiration, were often the result of great labor and repeated polish. TOM MOORE, for example, the man whose poetry almost seems to flow without an effort, was sometimes a half a day in perfecting a single stanza; and the blotted and interlined manuscripts of BYRON and SCOTT show the careful and laborious process by which their poems were finished and perfected.

Let our young Poets profit by these facts. Let them cultivate their talent, and finish up their efforts by a similar process. It is not the amount you write; it is the manner in which you clothe and polish what you write. A single brief poem so polished and refined till the poetical idea is clad in its exactly fitting garb of words will do more for the fame of the young writer than whole reams of carelessly written verses. Will our young friends remember this, and hereafter send us nothing but what has undergone this process? It will save them some postage and relieve us from the unpleasant duty of refusing their requests.

HINTS TO FARMERS, MECHANICS, AND LABORING MEN.

NO. 1.

Agriculture to be profitable must have a home market. Just in proportion as the business of the Farmer is made profitable, is every other interest in the country benefited. Let us examine this matter a little. When the Farmer is in a "drag,"—when the price of his products is low, he cannot afford to build fine houses and substantial barns, nor to make other improvements on his property. The result is he gives no employment to the Mechanics around him. He cannot buy expensive furniture, or clothing, or books, or carriages; consequently those whose business it is to produce such articles lack customers. He cannot subscribe to the stock of railroads, or canals or other public improvements, and such works are not made, desirable and needed as they are. These all are affected to disadvantage.

But how is it when the farmer's crops are not only good, but when he is able to get a good price for them? Why he can afford to pay good prices to those who work for him, and he and they are enabled to become good customers to the Mechanics, the Manufacturers and the Merchants. Each class is benefited and every interest advanced.

The truth is, no country can prosper where Agricultural labor is not well rewarded. It is this that very largely controls the whole machinery of business. Capital increases; Mechanics, Manufactures, and Merchants are kept busy and everything flourishes. But when the products of Agricultural industry find a poor market, the fires which furnish the motive power to the machine languish and everything is disordered.

As things now are our Farmers have too poor a market for most of their surplus produce. They have been depending for customers from abroad instead of doing what they could to find them at home.

SCHOOLS AND TEACHERS.

The NORTH CAROLINIAN is the friend and advocate of Popular Education, and as the period is at hand when the Winter Schools should re-open we feel it incumbent on us to call attention to the importance of the subject. The re-opening of the District Schools is really one of the most important events in the history of a community. It is too little thought of—too little estimated. The attention of parents is absorbed in business; they pay comparatively little attention to aught else, and the result is they know but little about the school to which they send their children to be educated.

In a country like this the District School is among our most important institutions. They mould the child; they shape the destiny of the man. The character of these schools are entirely dependent upon the care and management of those controling them. If neglected, what may be expected but poor, miserable, inefficent schools? But if the proper authorities feel their responsibility and act as becomes men engaged in the noblest work committed to human hands; our schools can be made what they were designed to be—mighty engines in benefitting and blessing the human race.

The beginning point is with parents themselves—with those having children to educate. These should feel an interest in everything pertaining to education. As our Public Schools are, to a considerable extent, under the control of Trustees, the people—the voting parents of each Township should see to it that the most intelligent, the most public spirited and earnest friends of the educational interest be elected to that responsible position. Then as it is impossible to have good schools without good teachers, and as these are obliged to undergo an examination by the County Examiner, the Trustees ought to try to be present and witness these examinations. They should be acquainted with the wants of their district, and then judging of the abilities and qualifications of the applicants, employ no one not thoroughly qualified to meet these wants.

We propose writing a series of articles, during the Fall and Winter, having a direct reference to this interesting topic, hoping as the result to do something towards removing the apathy and indifference too much characterizing all classes about our Public Schools.

The more a man accomplishes, the more he may. An active tool never grows rusty. You always find those men the most forward to do good or to improve the times and manners, always busy. Who start our railroads, our steamboats, our machine shops, our factories? Men of industry and enterprise. As long as they live they keep at work, doing something to benefit themselves and others. We go for activity in body, in mind, in everything. Keep things in motion. We should rather that death finds us scaling a mountain than sinking in the mire—breasting a whirlwind than sneaking from a cloud.

"Where are the dead, the buried dead, who trod the earth that we now tread?"—Ex.

If we were to make a random guess, we should say that most of them are buried.

New Books, Periodicals, &c.

A NEW NOVEL BY DR. HOLLAND.—On receiving the new number of Scribner's Monthly, one will naturally turn first to the opening of Dr. Holland's novel, "Arthur Bonnicastle," and when he has read it through, he will wish that instead of giving us only a dozen pages, the editor had been less modest, and inserted three times that amount. For from the first line one's attention is riveted by the charming gracefulness of the style—which is one of the author's excellencies that few of his critics are able to gainsay or rival—by the naturalness of the characters introduced, and by the exqusit humor of much of the dialogue. The movement is just right, neither too rapid nor too slow. The autobiography first touches lightly on the earliest childhood of the hero, born among the New Hampshire hills, then describes more fully a stage-ride from the old home to a new one in a New England village-city, a drive that is enlivened by the exceedingly comical observations of the drive, a decidedly practical humorist, in depicting whom the writer's genius shines with a steady brilliancy. The sketching of such an original is a success that must excite the envy of all who have striven in that difficult field. The young hero's own quaint conceits presently come to light also, and show that he is one whose fortunes will be watched with intense interest as they are unfolded from month to month. Two excentric characters, a little old lady and a benevolent old gentleman, are also introduced into the first scene of the drama, together with a good-natured Irishman, so that there is no want of dramatis personæ; the stage is pleasantly full, and if it were not the curtain drops altogether too soon, one would be perfectly satisfied. Perhaps the best compliment that can be paid to this introduction is to say—and we can say it honestly—than as soon one has arrived at the end of the chapter, he is strongly inclined to turn back and at once read the whole over again. The high finish of it, in fact, makes it a bit of art that excites the desire to make a careful study of it.

THE GREAT INDUSTRIES OF THE UNITED STATES. Being an Historical Summary of the Origin, Growth, and Perfection of the Chief Industrial Arts of this Country. By Horace Greeley, John B. Gough, Jos. B. Lyman, and other eminent writers. Octavo: over 1,150 pages, illustrated. Hartford, Conn. J. B. BURR & HYDE, Publishers.

The need of such a work as "The Great Industries," has long been felt by the people at large. The rich can afford to possess themselves of the great Encyclopedias, numerous ponderous tomes, costing as much as the man of moderate means can afford to pay for books during a life-time. And the rich have leisure to read such works, when they get them; but we doubt after all that many of them ever do; for these works are seldom written in an engaging style, and the fact is, that in the midst of such a mass of matter gathered by hosts of writers of various degrees of merit, countless inaccuracies occur, and the posssor discovering some of these, loses faith in the rest of the indigestible mass.

But here we have a work evidently the result of long and weary research, and adapted to the instruction of all classes, within the reach of everybody's purse, and which deals with the most important matters of everyday life. It discusses the arts and manufactures of every kind, from the most simple to the most ingenious, complex, and elaborate creations of human genius and labor. It explains how things are made, as well as what is made; and no artisan, however skillful in his own branch of factures, can fail to learn something useful to himself in regard thereto in this work, as well as gratify that longing in every inquiring mind, to know by what process the results of other arts and inventions that his own are arrived at.

The book is written in an engaging, instructive style, and must prove invaluable to every family who may have the happiness to posses themselves of it. The youth and adults alike will find profit in its perusal. Issued in a neat and elegant manner it is an ornment to the library or table, and considered either in its scientific or mecanical character does credit to the distinguished firm which publishes it, and by whom it could not have been brought out without great expense of money, time, and labor. But such a work usually brings to its publishers a due reward at last by its extensive sales, such as this work cannot fail to enjoy. We predict for it a very wide circulation—and are glad to see that it has been translated into German for the benefit of a large class of intelligent reading immigrants.

This book is for sale at the NORTH CAROLINIAN office. Price $3.00.

The November number of the LADY'S FRIEND is fuller than ever of Engravings, Stories, and other good things, and completes Mrs. Wood's exciting novelet besides. But we think our readers would rather hear that the famous author of "East Lynne" announces already a new serial for this Magazine, to be called "THE MASTER OF GREYLANDS;" and that four other serials are also announced for next year by Daisy Ventnor, Miss Douglas, Miss Hodgson, and Miss Muzzey. A beautiful Premium Chromo (Little Samuel, the Child-Prophet) is also announced, while a long list of Premiums from Sewing Machines and Gold Watches to Plated Tea Spoons, &c.—are promised to those who get up lists of subscribers. Send twenty cents for a sample number, containing all the inducements. Price, $2.00 a year, or $2,50 with the Premium Chromo. Four copies $6.00. Eight copies (and one gratis) $12.00. THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL.—for November deserves a warm welcome from the reading public; for, taken as a whole, it is a number of unusual excellence. A glimpse of its contents, only, is afforded by the following titles: Jessy Olney, the eminent geographer; Independence in Thinking, a strong but carefully written paper; Supplementing an Imperfect Education, worth a year's subscription in itself for its valuable suggestions; Mrs. Anna L. Barbauld, the poetess; Phillil's Lottery Ticket; Niue and the Niuans, illustrated; Another installment of Expression; Instinct and Reason, an amusing and instructive article; Thomas Sterry Hunt, F. R. S.; A Little Girl's First Impression of Beecher; Ode to the Nightingale; Moral Aspects of Dancing, etc. Price of the number, 30 cts. For the year, $3,00. A new volume begins with 1873. Address S. Correspondence.

The United States Naval Academy. I.

To a large majority of our people the Naval Academy is associated with the academy of their boyhood—a plain old building surmounted by its little belfry, standing isolated on the green lawn, within whose gloomy walls lazy boys sit upon knife-scarred benches idly peering into dog-eared books. To correct this error, by a description, in part of the institution and its workings, is the design of this article and others which may follow.

THE CITY OF ANNAPOLIS

is situated on the south branch of the Severn River, standing on a peninsula formed by Acton's and Covey's creeks. The grounds of the

NAVAL ACADEMY

are located in the eastern corner of this peninsula. The shape of these grounds is that of a trapezium, longest on its northern side and widest in its eastern limits. A sea-wall bounds them on the north and east, facing the Severn. A high brick wall, the color of pale lilac with a capping of brown, extends along the southern and western boundaries, beginning and ending where the sea-wall terminates. The combined length of these walls is more than one mile, within which lies the

ACADEMY PARK.

Long rows of buildings skirt the northern, western and southern sides of this park, and another row nearly bisects it in its central part, running nearly north and south. The description and use of these buildings, which are about fifty in number, I shall defer until a future time.

Skilful hands have been at work, for a long time, beautifying and adorning the grounds, until now they present a rare blending of nature and art, charming to look upon; showing terraces and lawns of velvety softness, and tiny groves that are diversified in shape, in size and foliage. Paths, avenues and broad walks of stone, brick, asphaltum and gravel run through their confines, describing circles, squares, ellipses and other figures, or, apparently without any design, ramble about the lawns, their trails resembling in shape the track of a wary fox seeking to elude the eager hounds. Sturdy oaks, graceful weeping willows and cone-shaped cedars protect them from the fiercer rays of the sun; or stand as skirmishers in line, to give battle to the stormy wind and tempest. Here rustic benches invite to repose; there beds of sweet flowers plead for warmest adulation. In the clear sunlight glisten rich fountains whose rising jets form tiny Irises, children of Jove's lair messenger. Scattered here, there, everywhere, are black-mouthed cannon, painfully suggestive of the past of hate and vengeance. But sadder than these, appearing like skulls in the old Egyptian banquets, are the pale monuments that point to the blue sky in silent expectation. The beauty of their design and finish is lost in contemplation of the memories which they awaken. Each contains a separate inscription, yet each tells in substance the same story. The tall obelisk is in memory of the gallant Herndon, commander of the illfated steamship Central America, who lost his life in efforts to save his passengers from a watery grave. A monument not far away tells of younger men, who, when hope was brightest and it was hardest to die, offered up their lives on the altars of their country. The really elegant was erected "to the memory of Captain Richard Somers, and Lieutenants James Caldwell, James Decatur, Henry Wadsworth, Joseph Israel, and John S. Dorsey, who fell in the several attacks made on the City of Tripoli, in the year of our Lord 1804." This monument, which originally stood in the Washington navy yard, was defaced considerably by the British in the war of 1812–14, and it bore for several years, by order of Congress, an inscription to that effect. It was removed to the Academy in the year 1860.

Outside the wall, stretching towards the west, lies a low tract of land, containing twenty acres, which extends to Graveyard Creek, about six-hundred yards distant. A part of this tract (nine and a half acres) is owned by the government, the purchase of the remainder is under consideration, the whole to be embraced within the Academy walls. At the termination of this tract a handsome drawbridge spans the creek, leading to

STRAWBERRY HILL PARK AND THE CEMETERY.

This park, while it is much larger than the one already described, is of more recent purchase, and is as yet but in the infancy of improvement. Possessing rare natural advantages, it is destined to rival the parks of our large cities. Excellent taste has been displayed in the laying out of groves, lawns and paths. The paths, which measure four miles, lead to all parts of the grounds, showing miniature valleys, dells and hills covered with downy grass, and dotted with wild flowers that fill the air with their "many sweet breaths." Near the western terminus, or its greatest elevation, stands the a commodious building of delicate finish, containing all the modern improvements. This structure was completed last year at a cost of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. On a bluff overhanging Graveyard Creek and the Severn river, in the eastern part of the park a has been laid out for the interment of officers and seamen belonging to the navy. Here, beneath sturdy oaks and slender chesnut trees, some already quietly sleep. A plain slab bears a name familiar to many who will read this paper. It is that of the heroic Flussar, killed at Plymouth, N. C., in the year 1864—a man having many of the faults of humanity, yet brave and honest—true to God and his country.

MAILLI.

More of the Gerrymander.

To make the infamy of the gerrymander perfectly apparent to the most obtuse understanding, the following is submitted to the public:—

The 18th Senatorial District, composed of Wake county, has a population of 35,617, and has but one Senator—this District is Republican by about 500 majority. The 10th Senatorial District, composed of the counties Wayne and Duplin, has a population of 33,686, nearly 2,000 less than Wake, but has two Senators—this District is Democratic by about 300 majority.

AGAIN:—The 1st District, composed of Currituck, Camden, Pasquotank, Hertford, Gates, Chowan and Perquimans, has a population of 50,015, and is given two Senators, the District being Republican; while the 36th District, composed of Caldwell, Burke, McDowell, Mitchell and Yancy, has a population of 36,450, being 13,556, less than the 1st District, and is entitled to two Senators. the District being Democratic.

AGAIN:—The 3d District, composed of Northampton and Bertie, has a population of 27,669, and is Republican, with one Senator, while the 23d District, composed of Rockinghan, with a population of 15,708, being 11,991 less than the 3d, has also one Senator; but Rockingham is Democratic. This comparison, so damning to the last Democratic Legislature, might be indefinitely extended, but enough has been said to make honest Democrats heartily sick of the tricks of their party leaders, and enough to make those leaders hang their heads in very shame. People of North Carolina, can you repose any confidence in such men? We do not believe you longer will.—Era.

Common Carriers.

In reply to a North Carolinia subscriber, the New York Journal of Commerce repeats that limitations of liability which form the chief part of the printed matter on bills of lading do not necessarily govern the responsibility of common carriers. An express company may cover its receipt with notices that where value of the package is not named the company will not be liable for more than fifty dollars; but if it accepts the carriage of a package of ordinary merchandise with no stipulated value named in the contract, it will be liable for its full value in case of miscariage. A carrier is not liable for delay unless neglect can be shown, and the owner cannot recover damages for detention unless he can show that the carrier did not show ordinary diligence.

It is estimated that 3,000,000 inhabitants have died from famine in Persia. Such an awful calamity could never have happened had Persia been near to our grain-fields.

Yearly Meeting of the Society of Friends in Baltimore—Interesting Proceedings.

BALTIMORE, Md., Monday, Oct. 28, 1872.

The annual meeting of one great branch of the Friends is now going on here, at their meeting-house on Lombard street, and has drawn together a much larger number of its members than usual. They represent a denomination that has been foremost in nearly all the great reforms of the age, particularly on the subjects of war, temperance, a free Gospel ministry, and slavery, or, to express it in a single phrase, their opposition to all kinds of oppression. The interest excited among many who are not members of the Friends' Society is so great that yesterday the house was three times crowded to its utmost capacity. Among the notable ministers in attendance we see the venerable Benjamin Hallowell, formerly of Alexandria, Va., where for many years he concucted a school, in which many prominent Southerners were pupils, among them the afterwards distinguished Gen. Robert E. Lee. Benjamin Hallowell is one of the originators of the present system of governmental management of Indian affairs, and is one of President Grant's most trusted advisers on this subject. He is about seventy years of age, and was once robust, but shows somerhing of the frailty of old age. He is not a fluent speaker, but is a ready writer, and one of the best educated men in the country, being particularly eminent as a naturalist. He has written much upon social and philosophical subjects, and is one of the leading minds of the Friends' denomination.

The Janney's are also prominent members of the yearly meeting. Samuel M. Janney is a wide-known Virginian, who has also been connected with the Indian service, having been Suprintendent in charge of one Indian Department for three years, sacrificing the comforts of home and friends, and solely on account of what he felt to be a religious duty required of the nation. His brother, Asa M. Janney, who occupied a similar position with another branch of the Indian Service, is here also.—Samuel M. is another who stands high in the estimation of Friends. His principal works are a Life of William Penh, and a History of Friends, but he is a fine essayist, and a volume of poems that he published several years ago merits warm commendation. Among the other notable men of the meeting is the venerable John Needles, now in his eighty-fifth year, who has attended for sixty-four years without ever missing a single meeting. He was formerly engaged in the furniture business, but retired from trade a good many years ago and has since devoted himself to philanthropic objects. He is one of the finest, most benevolent men living.

William Dorsey, a prominent and eloquent minister from Philadelphia is regarded as one of the strong men of the meeting.

Two young men who have lately come into the ministry give, by their zeal and deportment, great promises of future usefulness. One of them is Elwood D. Conrad of New-Jersey, and the other James W. Haynes of Ohio. The former is only twenty-two, and the latter twenty-four years of age. The most prominent female minister here is Mary Lippincott, of Philadelphia.

The excellent Lucretia Mott used to attend all the meetings, but her advanced and other circumstances have kept her away for the last two or three years. We miss, also, George Truman, the most eloquent of the Quaker preachers in this country. The most interesting feature of this yearly meeting will be a report from the Committee having charge of Indian affairs, as it will furnish reliable information of matters on our Western frontier. Another feature of much interest to all is the confrence of Friends from all parts of the country in reference to First day schools (Sunday-schools.) These were formerly discountenanced by many memberst of the society, but it is found that they awaken denominational interest among young persons, an dare productive of much good, and the opposition to them is rapidly dying out.—BONA., Cor. of N. Y. Times.

These gentlemen, however, console themselves some-what by an occasional glance at the election returns from Pennsylvania and Indiana, which are quite soothing to persons in affliction.—Missouri Democrat.

The survey of the railway along the Nile is completed. The line is about six hundred miles in length; commences at Wady Kallah, near the second cataract, and terminates at Chartum, where the Blue and White Nile unite their waters above the sixth cataract. For nearly three-fourths of its length the line will be on the edge of the valley, about three-fourths of a mile from the river, and above the level of the periodical inundations.

A gentleman whose interests are directly connected with ship-building informs us that there is more demand for ship timber in Portland than there has been for several years; and, after looking over and examining the whole matter, he has formed the opinion that in 1873 there will be a general revival of ship-building in New England, and that more tunnage will be put a float from our Maine yards than in any year sinte 1860.

The Western rail-road lines are expending immense sums upon their tracks and equipment. They have to do twice as much work for their money as they once did, and their cars and their rails go down rapidly under the enormous work put upon them. On the main lines steel rails are being substituted at an immense expense, but on the branches where the traffic is light and the wear longer the interest upon the cost of steel rails prevents their profitable introduction.

At a public "Tea Party" recently held in one of our country towns where "sentiments" where in order, a timid bachelor was bold enough to remind the ladies that leap year was upon them, by offering the following:

Three long years I have waited for this,
Now if you'll pop the question, I'll surely say yes.

To which the lady promptly responded as follows:

The man without courage to do his own wooing,
May do his own washing, and baking, and sewing.

The bachelor looked despair.

Five hundred pages of Mr. Seward' second work, an autobiography, which was uncompleted at the time of his death have already been written up, or are in notes, ready for engrossment. These comprise his personal history, and will undoubtedly prove the most valuable pages for his friends and admirers. The notes from his dictionary, we understand, include that portion of national history connected with the rebellion, and their reproduction in print will form a volume which the people of the whole country will await with interest. Mr. Frederick Seward will probably be assisted in the compilation by Mr. A. A. Guthman, former Private Secretary to Mr. Seward.

Chicago claims to have been rebuilding itself during the past eight months at the rate of one fourth-story edifice for every hour of the working day. Assuming that it would require an average force of at least twenty men to complett one such building in eight months, and counting eight hours as a day's work this computation would imply that 33,600 mechanics are steadily employed in the actual raising of houses in Chidago, to say nothing of the numerous auxiliary handicraftsmen whose home labor contributes to the finishing and ornamentation of each structure. These latter being, at the lowest estimate, as many as the builders proper, it follows that nearly one-fourth of the entire population of Chicago, men, wome, and children, is engaged in the manual toil of house-building.

TUNNELS AT BALTIMORE.—Two tunnels are in course of construction beneath the city of Baltimore. That of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad Company, will connect all the roads with tidal water, and also afford a passage round the city by steam-power, thus dispensing with the hauling of goods and passengers through the streets with horses. This tunnel is 3,400 feet long, formed of a semi-circular arch of five brick rings, and an invert of four bricks. In some places the invert is despensed with. About 450 men and 90 horses are engaged on the work. The material, which is mostly sand, is excavated to the whole depth of the cut; the arch is then built, and the material replaced over it. The tunnel, with the exception of about 360 feet which is being drifted, is worked in this way:—The arch is being in sections of 50 feet in length, and these sections are being constructed at five or six points simultaneously. The whole tunnel is expected to be finished and ready for trains by January next.

ADRUG STORE WORTH SEEING

To the Editor of the North Carolinian

During a recent visit to your little City I was among other things attracted by the new Drug Store of Dr. J. N. BUTT, No. 75 Road Street, and I cannot resist the impulse to ask your readers to call and see it, as it is not surpassed by any you will meet in the South, not in Baltimore will you find one more elegantly fitted up except its deficiency in gas lights which the Doctor hopes to supply soon. It is a two story brick building, 65 by 27 feet, with dwelling above. The lower story is divided into Dispensing Room, Office, Ware Room and Laboratory. The Store Room is very light. The front being entirely of plate glass, nine pieces 90 inches long, with two doors and one window, glass 56 x 90. The doors being double, shut one upon the other, and when open, as in summer, are folded back into a recess to the wall, making a straight line with the door and an elegant finish. The doors and flanges to the same being of plate glass, 90 inches long, does not impede the light open or shut. The floor is almost even with the pavement and is covered with a carpet of cocoa matting. There are two counters on either side, 12 feet long, beautifully white splendidly finished, and of good design with italian marble tops. Their ends 8 feet from the doors, pass at right angle to the wall. On the right hand one is a Tennessee Marble Fountain, and on the other an Aquarium of Gold and other Fish. On either side between the door and counter, is a fine silver mounted walnut Show Case, 5 feet high, fastened to the wall a beautiful and attractive ornament to display Fancy Articles, and in the rear a Poison Case of the same kind. Three find silver mounted and one plate glass Prescription Case, with scroll and clock on top, and one fine balance scale adorn the counters. There are over 120 drawers which make a fine display, they are of sweet gum varnished, which is the prettiest wood that could be used. The shelves are supported on iron brackets, at the terminus of which, 3 feet from the ceiling, is a snow white cornice, interlined with two strips of gilt moulding. The wall and entire store is pure white except the drawers and when lighted presents a very imposing display.

Last but not least, is the "little jewel" of an office, which is so much needed by every business man. The Doctor is doing, as he tells us, an extensive and lucrative office practice. It is fitted up in fine style, with every modern necessity and examinations are made with as much privacy as in your own home. The Laboratory is not yet finished, but when done will be a very responsible part of the establishment. The Doctor keeps a large stock of goods pertaining to the Drug Trade.

Local and Personal.

☞Dr. I. T. ANDREWS and lady returned on Saturday evening's Boat.

☞The proceedings of the County Commissioners have not yet been handed in.

☞The first of the promised articles on the "United States Naval Academy" appears this week.

☞The "price of liberty is eternal vigilance," but the price of the NORTH CAROLINIAN is only Two Dollars a year!

☞See proclamation of His Excellency Gov. CALDWELL appointing Thursday the 28th inst., as a day of Thanksgiving and Prayer.

☞Our good friend M. B. CULPEPPER has gone into the grocery business. He holds forth at the Canal Bridge on Road Street.

☞Among the arrivals this week are GUIDO BAUMBACK and family from Middletown, Pa. They are locating in the lower part of the county.

☞Several of our exchanges are publishing some most excellent original articles. We know they are excellent for they have been published in the NORTH CAROLINIAN.

☞A reader wants to know the origin of the name "Chappaqua," and how it is pronounced. It is an Indian name and means "Singing Water." It is pronounced Chap-pa-Kuaw, each syllable equally accented.

☞It is not what people eat, but what they digest that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they save, that makes them rich. It is not what they read, but what they remember, that makes them learned.

☞There is a man in this county who refused to go to the election yesterday. He was asked to support GREELEY, but he declined, saying it was as much as he could do to support himself without supporting anybody for President.

☞Through an oversight we omitted to notice the arrival at SALOMONSKY'S Mammoth Clothing Store, of a large, select and splendid assortment of New Goods in their line. We ask our readers, one and all, to give them a call, and they will find that they deal "on the square."

☞Now that the elections are over—and we are heartily glad of it—the NORTH CAROLINIAN will have less to say about politics and more upon other subjects important to our readers, our section and our State. The field is large, the topics numerous. We will try and do our duty.

☞A love smitten country chap wants to know whether it is "very wrong" to steal a kiss from a pretty girl. It may not be, but sometimes it is attended with danger. A Missourian who attempted it was fined by a magistrate and horse whipped by her brother. Better be cautious.

☞In all our business experience we never knew money so scarce. It is the universal complaint. We had hoped that when the cotton began to move—and it is moving—"green backs" would begin to circulate, and that we would see some of them. As yet our hope is not realized. It will be several weeks before the Corn is ready for market.

☞The man who advertiies shows not only a business talent above those of his neighbors who do not, but he may at once be reckoned among the independent, generous and public spirited of the community. He who hides his light under a bushel when such advantages as those at present afforded are so freely offered him does not deserve to succeed.

☞We sometimes hear people refer to Elizabeth City as an unhealthy place, but during our recent visit through Ohio, Indiana and Illinois we found, at every town, more cases of chills and billious fever than we have here. We are more impressed than ever with the fact that Eastern Carolina will compare quite favorably so far as health is concerned, with any locality we have ever visited. We speak from careful observation and personal knowledge.

☞The very flattering enconium of our Raleigh correspondent—we are too modest to publish his letter—is appreciated. We file it away among the pleasant souvenirs of our editorial life. We have never plumed ourself on our "much erudition," nor do we claim that our editorials have overflowed with mighty wisdom. We have only aimed to fill them with the commonest of common sense, trying to adapt them to the great wants and special needs of our readers. Our Raleigh admirer thinks we have succeeded. We hope so.

☞A good many people are complaining of "colds." It is the result of carelessness. The true secret of keeping from "catching cold" consists in not exposing one's self to sudden extremes of temperature, continually, as much as possible. Don't at one time have a roaring fire and everybody in the room perspiring, and the next moment the dampers all off, and everybody shivering. Better have the atmosphere at sixty degrees and keep it there, than to have it first at sixty and then at eighty or ninety, and then back to sixty again.

The Democratic "ROOSTER"

ON HIS BACK!

Pasquotank's Majority near 700.
Camden over 130 Republican.

GAINS EVERYWHERE!!

The State Republican by at least 10,000 Majority.

Particulars next week.

☞The election yesterday passed off quietly and very satisfactorily—to the Republicans. In this City the majority for GRANT is 180, a gain of 51. In every precinct of the county there is a decided Republican gain. Our gain in Mt. Herman is 40; in Providence 31; at Cartwright's School House 13; at Pool's School House 20; at Nixonton ——; at Salem 71, and at Newland ——. Thus it will be seen that the "Sold out" Democracy are badly beaten in this county, as they are in the State and Union. The 'Straight out' O'CONNER ticket got 1 vote in Providence. 1 at Pool's School House, 1 at Mt. Herman, 13 at Salem, besides several at other precincts. GRANT'S majority in this county will run over 600.

☞Hon. C. L. COBB has been doing yeoman service in the Western part of State. Among others he met and vanquished Gen. CLINGMAN. The Ashville Pioneer thus refers to him:

Mr. Cobb is a young man, probably the youngest in the House of Representatives, and his signal triumph over an experienced and wiry politician—the Trojan of the Whig, Democratic, Conservative, Liberal Republican, and all other parties which have had an existence in the last half century—is one that he may well be proud of.

☞The "Epizootic" has reached our City—near a hundred horses affected. The malady, where the animals are properly cared for, is not proving severe or dangerous. Our exchanges are full of accounts of its progress all over the country. According to the combined diagnosis of the doctors it is an "epihipepic, laryngitic, catarrhal, diptheric, febrile influenza." It entered this country about three weeks ago from Canada, and has already extended to the South and West. The symptoms are a short, dry cough, followed by running from the nostrils and eyes and general depression and langour. The treatment should be mild and gentle, the exercise should be moderate, and the stalls kept clean.

☞We had no mail on Monday—cause "epizootic." Fifty dollars was offered for a horse but none could be had. The following letter of the Post Master at Norfolk to the Journal explains the delay:

POSTOFFICE,
NORFOLK, Va., November 4, 1872.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—Please state for the information of your subscribers out of the city, who have failed to receive their mail as usual, that owing to the Steamer WBanks making no trip on Saturday the Yorktown and Mathews mails were left, and on account of an accident to the ferry this morning, the Southern mails via. Seaboard and Roanoke Railroad failed to get off; and for the reason that no well horses could be found in this city yesterday and to-day, mails for Elizabeth City and away were also detained. Those delays were unavoidable, and only temporary.—To-morrow (Tuesday) all back mails will be forwarded as usual.

Very truly &c.,

It is a really valuable book.

THE WARNING HAS BEEN HEEDED.—Since the exposure of the attempts made by certain unscrupulous local dealers, to palm off their cheap astringents made from cheap and impure materials, in the place of the great national tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, public opinion has set strongly against these empirics and their predarations. Their occupation is gone, or soon will be. When the light is let into deception it soon wilts down. Persons who trifle with their own health, by using unknown preparations, with no guarantee to sustain them, when an old established special, proven by twenty years experience to do exactly what it is claimed to be, is within their reach, are sure to reap of their temerity. Many have done so this instance, but it is cop'd that the truth plainly spoken has arrested its evil. In the meantime the demand for the leading protective and restorative medicine of America was never so great as it has been this season. From the fever and ague districts of the west, southwest, and south, it is literally overwhelming, and it may be said of the advices from all parts of the country of the cures it is effecting in dispepsia, billious complaints, and chronic constipation, that "their name is legion." Everywhere the sick and feeble seem to have realized the importance of "holding fast that which is good," and of avoiding what is spurious and dangerous.

The numerous "Bitters" under various names which mercenary dealers endeavor to substitute for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, should be avoided, for their own sake, by the sick and the public at large. Hostetter's Bitters are procurable in bottles only, and never sold in bulk.

The fences and ditches are in complete order, nearly every ditch on the premises either having been trimmed and cut out this fall, or now being done so. In addition to the open land, there is a large Deadening of One Hundred and Fifty acres ready to come into cultivation, and in quality not to be surpassed by any in the State. The owner who resides about five miles below it in Durants Neck will take pleasure in showing it and pointing out its advantages to any parties who may desire to examine it, until the day of sale.

$500,000 IN BANK.

GRAND GIFT CONCERT

Postponed to Dec. 7, 1872.

THE SECOND GRAND GIFT CONCERT in aid of the Public Library in Kentucky, announced for September 28, has been postponed to December 7, 1872, because the accumulation of orders the few days before the drawing made it physically impossible to fill them without a few days' delay, and as a short postponement was inevitable, it was determined to defer it to a time that would make a full drawing sure by the sale of all the tickets.

The money necessary to pay in full all the offered gifts is now upon deposit in the Farmer's and Drovers' Bank, as will be seen by the following certificate of the Cashier:

FARMERS' AND DROVERS' BANK.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 26, 1872.

This is to certify that there is now on deposit in this bank over half a million of dollars to the credit of the Gift Concert fund, $500,000 of which is held by this bank as Treasurer of the Public Library of Kentucky to pay off all gifts to be awarded at the drawing.

R. S. VEACH, Cashier.

1,000 Prizes, amounting to

will be awarded, the highest prizes being $100,000, $50,000, $25,000, and down in regular gradation to $100, which is the lowest.

The drawing will positively and unequivocally take place December 7. Agents are peremptorily required to close sales and make returns November 25, in order to give ample time for final arrangements. Orders for tickets or applications for circulars should be addressed to

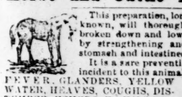
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.



This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

Death Among the Horses.

The disease which has so generally attacked the horses of the City is not in itself of a fatal nature. Death is caused simply by improper treatment and excessive medicine. The nature of the disease is simply that of a cattarh or influenza, and the horse should be treated in the same manner as a human being similarly affected. To affect a cure it is simply necessary to give warm flaxseed tea, very thick, so as to be mucilaginous, and to bathe the feet and legs with warm water, at the same time covering the body with blankets. A horse suffering from the complaint is not likely to eat much food, but such as is offered him should be thoroughly cooked, and ought to be pure meal.

In connection with this cure there should be used substances to purify the atmosphere and neutralize its malarious elements. The best articles to accomplish this end are sulphorous acid and carbolic acid. While acting in a somewhat different manner, both these substances are valuable. They are cheap, and no possible harm can accrue from their being sprinkled on the stable floors, while much good may result therefrom. As a preventive, the chemicals are also of much value, not only at the present time of danger, but at all times, for there are few stables wherein gases deleterious to health are not generated by the want of proper cleansing. Too many of the stables of our City are below the ground level, and both damp and unwholesome.

Briefly, then, every man should treat his horses in this crisis just as he would himself, sf attacked with a bad cold, proporting the dose to the relatively stronger organism. Aconite, belladonna, other strong drugs, and bleeding, are among the means of sending the carcases of the horses to the rendering establishments. If moderately and properly treated, the disease will probably have passed away in ten days, but every horse improperly dealt with will be left with a lingering disease analogous to the human penumonia or consumption.

As yet there appears no decided change in the character of the weather, and until this occurs no abatment of the disease, from natural causes can be expected. When we shall have bright sunshine whether it be warm or seasonably cool the maiarious disease will vanish almost simultaniously with the damp fogginess of the present atmosphere. But as we cannot control the elements, we may now create the ozone, which destroys the malaria, by the use of the chemicals alluded to, just as nature creates it by the electric nature of her warm sunshine acting on the moist air.—New York Papers.

Dig Around the Trees.

This advice needs to be repeated daily. Every farmer knows that a hill of corn or potatoes will not amount to much unless cultivated, and yet there are many who will neglect to give the same care to a tree, which is worth a hundred hills of either of the former. In rich soils, trees may grow rapidly without cultivation, and no amount of grass or weeds will retard them; but there are other things besides growth to be looked after. If the weeds and grass are allowed to grow up around the stems of apple, peach, or quince trees, the bark will become soft near their base by being shaded, and thereby be in a suitable condition for the reception of the eggs which will eventually become peach or apple borers. Take any dozen young apple trees in sections where the apple-tree borer is abundant, and allow a portion to be choked with weeds, and the remainder well cultivated and then watch the result. From our own experience, we believe that the chances are nine to one in favor of those cultivated being exempt from this pest. The same is true in regard to many other trees which are liable to the attacks of various species of insects. Young evergreens should never have their lower branches shaded with weeds and grass, and the soil as far as the lower branches extend should be stirred at least once in two or three weeks during the entire summer, or else apply some kind of mulching that will effectually keep down the weeds. When the trees become large and strong, these precaution will not be necessary. Every blade of grass or small weed that is allowed to grow about the stem of young trees will rob the soil of moisture, and this fact alone ought to be sufficient to make every one practice thorough and careful culture.—Exchange.

How Butter is Spoiled.

A farmer's wife writing to the Ohio Farmer says: "Of all the products of the farm, butter is most liable to be tainted by noxious odors floating in the atmosphere. Our people laid some veal in the cellar from which a little blood flowed out, and was neglected until it commenced to smell. The result was, that a jar of butter which I was then packing, smelled and tasted like spoiled beef." Another lady reader observes that there is a pond of filthy, stagnant water a few hundred feet from their house from which an offensive effluvium would be borne on the breeze directly to the milkroom, when the wind was in a certain direction, the result of which was that cream and butter would taste like the disagreeable odor coming from that pond. As soon as the pond was drained we had no more damaged butter.

Grafting-Wax

This is an article which should be kept on hand ready for use whenever needed, for it is valuable for various reasons other purposes besides that of grafting. All wounds made in pruning trees will heal over much sooner if coated with this wax; and, if a piece of bark is accidentally stripped from a tree, the place should be covered over with it, and the wood will remains sound underneath. A good wax may be made as follows:—Melt in a basin one pound of tallow, two pounds of beeswax, and four pounds of rosin; stir well together, and keep in a cool place in the dish in which it is melted. If beeswax is a very costly item, one-third less quantity can be used.

To Measure Corn in the Crib.—This will apply to a crib of any size or kind. Two cubic feet of good, sound, dry corn in the ear will make a bushel of shelled corn. To get, then, the quantity of shelled corn in a crib of corn in the ear, measure the length, breadth & heigth of the crib, inside of the rail; multiply the length by the breadth, and the product by the highth; then divivide the two, and you have the number of bushels of shelled corn in the crib. To find the number of bushels of apples, potatoes, &c., in a bin, multiply the length, breadth and thickness together, & divide this product by eight, and point off one figure in the product for decimals.

An old lady from one of the rural district; astonished a clerk in one of the stores a few days ago by inquiring if he had any "yellow developments sich as they did up letters in."

"His pilgrimage is over," as the druggist's wife said when she ordered an epitaph for his tombstone.

OF VALUABLE

NORTH CAROLINA LANDS,

FOR SALE BY

GEORGE D. POOL.

Real Estate Agent,

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements for capitalisis and emigrants, as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate, in the sociability of the people, in great fertility, and durability of soil, no section can equal it.

A railroad will soon be built to Weldon, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing, farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A Steam Saw and Grist Mill in the town of Nixonton 8 miles from E. City. This Mill has a fine wharf and store attached on deep navigable water, the engine is 40 horse power, and all in good order. It is one of the finest locations to be found any where for custom work, and for getting good saw logs easily and cheaply. Price $4,000 cash.

Adjoining the mill property is 40 acres of fine land on the River, with three houses, all for $1200. Near the same is a good two story dwelling and 13 acres of land for $2,000, and a good one story dwelling, with one acre of land for $360.

Also two fine farms in Pasquotank county, 10 miles from E. City, within half mile of church, school house and post office. One tract contains about 400 acres, with fair buildings and mostly cleared, and the other contains 300 acres, with good two story dwelling, large barn, and other outhouses, both are offered at $20 per acre, one third cash, balance in one and two years.

Also one other tract in Pasquotank county, containing 116 acres, within one mile of the town with fine buildings, mostly cleared and in cultivation. Price $25 per acre, one half cash, balance in 12 months.

A valuable site for a hotel at Nag's Head, 40 miles from Elizabeth City, and 50 miles from Edenton. This is situated immediately on the Ocean, and is a famous Summer resort for invalids, and those seeking health, comfort, and amusements during the summer months. It is in direct communication by steamboats and railroad with all parts of North Carolina, Virginia, and the North; and is equal in natural advantages to Newport, or Cape May. Visitors flock to this famous summer resort by hundreds and thousands, and a large amount of money can be made by a hotel. A charter has been obtained from the Legislature of N. C., for a joint stock company to build the hotel. There is now an old hotel on the spot, which could be cheaply repaired and bought for $3.000. This hotel, though imperfectly kept, cleared the proprietor last season, over $3.000. For a man or a company, having some capital, this is one of the finest chances to make money at hotel keeping to be found anywhere. The early attention of the public is invited to this property.

A fine steam saw and grist mill at Herriford, the county seat of Perquimans County, N. C., 18 miles from Elizabeth City. This mill has a fifty horse power engine, now in good running, two pairs of best French burr stones, and two upright saws. The house has a brick basement, and the building is large and in good order. There is one and a half acres of land belonging to this property, and a good two story dwelling, and other out-houses. The section of country adjacent abounds in the finest yellow pine, cypress, ash, poplar, and other valuable timber. This property originally cost $15,000, and is now offered at forced sale for the low price of $3.500, $7.00, cash, and the balance in six equal instalments, six months apart each with interest.

A fine farm and fishery in same county. The farm contains 400 acres of the finest land, lies immediately on Albemarle Sound where the water is 12 miles wide, and 18 to 20 feet deep, has got buildings, and fine neighborhood. The fishery is on the farm and goes with it. It has a new seine 2,500 yards long, and all the necessary boats, buildings, &c., (which cost over $15,000 two years ago.) The fishery alone, of a good season, will make from 5 to $10,000 profit to the owner. This property is offered at forced sale for the low price of $20,000, $7,000 cash, balance on easy times.

A store at South Mills, in Camden county, 20 miles from E. City, and 20 miles from Norfolk, lying on the canal where steamers pass daily. A fine chance for merchandize. Store is large with dwelling above containing six rooms, is in first rate order, has office, kitchen, dairy, and other necessary outhouses. Goods to the amt. of $50,000 per annum can be sold here, and at large profits. A splended stand for a country retail store. Price $2,500—one third cash, balance in one and two years.

A valuable tract of land in Camden county, at South Mills, on the Dismal Swamp Canal, lying on the canal for two miles, containing over 900 acres of land—two-thirds cleared, and in a fine state of cultivation, with good buildings, &c.; balance in valuable timber. Price $12,000, one-third cash, balance in one and two years, interest from January, 1871. This is a valuable farm for corn, wheat, and vegetables, and being midway between Elizabeth City and Norfolk, and located where steamers pass by the door daily, is a desirable and cheap property.

A fine farm of 600 acres within six miles of E. City, one mile from navigable water, and the best cotton farm in the State. It is also well adapted to raising corn and wheat. This farm has a splended two-story dwelling upon it, large barn, 40 by 60 feet, a large number of outhouses, by splended trees and shrubbery, is in a strong Union neighborhood, and altogether the most desirable place in the county. A little over one-half of this land is cleared, and the balance is covered with the finest yellow pine, poplar, ash and other timber. Price $30 per acre—one-third cash, balance in one and two years with interest. Title reserved.

Sixteen houses and lots in Elizabeth City, with good dwellings, out-houses, &c. Prices and terms reasonable.

A valuable farm in Perquimans county, N. C. near navigable water. Has a fine dwelling-house with ten rooms, in splended order, with splended barns and stables—all in first rate order. The farm is very productive in corn, oats, wheat, cotton and clover. It is one of the finest farms in the State and is now in good cultivation, contains 555 acres of land, about three-fourths cleared and under cultivation. Price $10,000, one-third cash January 1, next, balance in two equal annual instalments with interest at the rate of six per cent.

A farm of 370 acres 8 miles from town by water, and 12 miles by land, is offered for sale for $10,000 in easy payments. This tract of land lies immediately on the River which is 4 mile wide and washes the farm its whole length on one side, and a branch of the River one mile wide, binds it on one end. The land is well adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, peas, &c., lies high and dry, and is susceptible of the highest improvement. Fronting and looking over, as it does, two large sheets of navigable water, where steamers and sailing vessels are constantly passing, carrying freight and passengers to all parts of the country, its location and surroundings, are of the most fascinating and desirable character. There is a fishery on it ready for working a seine 2,500 yards long, and which commands a portion of both streams of water, and can be made immensely profitable. The price charged is low, and the purchase a very desirable one. The buildings consist of a good two-story dwelling and out-houses.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

A Farm of 200 acres within one mile of Elizabeth City, with good two story dwelling, large barn and stables, and all necessary outhouses, orchard of fine fruit trees, and a large number of ornamental trees and shrubbery around dwelling. This farm is on one of the most public roads in the County—is in a high state of cultivation—has fine and durable fences, &c. Altogether, it is the richest land and most desirable location, anywhere in the neighborhood of the town. Price $6000—one-half cash, balance in easy payments.

What Horace Greeley Thinks of the Democratic Party.

EXTRACTS, RICH, RARE AND RACY.

Now that Mr. Greeley has become the leader of the Democracy, we present the following extracts from editorials of the New York Tribune, writen by Mr. Greeley during the forty years of his editorial life. They are refreshing, and will not nauseate Democrats who have lost all self-respect,—forsaken principle in their hunt for office,—and become first-class dirt-eaters. The extracts are as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE DISEASE.

"Mr. Webster was not only a gentleman, but he had the elements of moral greatness; and he had his faults as well. He failed only in one respect; and in this respect I differ from him—he wanted to be President, and I don't.—Horace Greeley, in 1868.

OUR GREATEST MAN.

"We have seen our greatest man, Mr. Chase, making the same blunder. I have seen men who had the disease early, and died of it at a very old age."—Horace Greeley, in 1868.

THE FATE OF GEN. CASS.

"Gen. Lewis Cass died at 82, and up to the day of his death he wanted to be President. No one ever escapes who catches the disease: he lives and dies in the delusion. Being a reader and an observer at an early age, I saw how it poisoned and paralyzed the best of our public men, and have carefully avoided it."—Horace Greeley, in 1866.

THE GOOD SENSE OF GEN. GRANT.

"We, at least, in our day, have a President-elect who did not try to be President. He was elected mainly on that account."—Horace Greeley, in 1868.

THE ENEMY OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

"If the Democratic party were called upon to decide between Grant and myself, I know that their regard for what they must call principle would induce nine-tenths of them to vote against me. Why? I am a decided enemy of that party, even in its most respectable aspects."—Horace Greeley, in 1871.

PICTURES OF THE DEMOCRACY.

"Every one who chooses to live by pugilism or gambling or harlotry, with nearly every keeper of a tippling house, is politically a Democrat."—Horace Greeley.

IGNORANCE A DEMOCRATIC ALLY.

"If there were not a newspaper or a common school in the country, the Democratic party would be far stronger than it is."—Horace Greeley.

DEMOCRATIC ESSENTIALS.

"The essential articles of the Democratic creed [are] 'love rum and hate niggers.' The less one learns and knows, the more certain he is to vote the regular ticket from A to izzard."—Horace Greeley.

WHO ARE DEMOCRATS.

"We thereupon asked our contemporary to state frankly whether the pugilists, blacklegs, thieves, burglars, keepers of dens of prostitution, etc., etc., * * * were not almost unanimously Democrats."—Horace Greeley.

DEMOCRATIC VIRTUES.

"To smoke is a Democratic virtue; to chew is that virtue intensified; to drink rum is that virtue in the superlative."—Horace Greeley.

THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATS'

"Point wherever you please to an election district which you will pronounce morally rotten, given up in great part to debauchery and vice; where voters subsist mainly by keeping policy-offices, gambling houses, grog-shops and darker dens of infamy, and that district will be found at nearly or quite every election giving a majority for that which styles itself 'the Democratic party.' Take all the haunts of debauchery in the land, and you will find nine tenths of their master spirits active partisans of that same Democracy. What is the instinct, the sympathetic chord, which attaches them so uniformly to this party? Will you consider?"—Horace Greeley.

REBEL DEMOCRACY.

"The brain, the heart, the soul of the present Democratic party is the rebel element at the South, with its Northern allies and simpathisers. It is rebel at the core to-day. It would come into power with the hate, the chagrin, the wrath, the
